

The University of California, Berkeley

is one of the world's leading universities in research, education, and public service. The campus enrolls approximately 31,000 students and employs approximately 1,500 faculty in more than 100 academic departments and interdepartmental groups within five colleges and nine professional schools. More than 40 organized research units located on and off campus contribute to the University's dynamic, vital environment for research and teaching.

This annual report presents Berkeley's sponsored research and other sponsored activities from July 1, 1999 through June 30, 2000. In FY 2000, UC Berkeley faculty received a total of $430.9 million in contract and grant awards from external sponsors, an amount essentially unchanged from FY 1999.

New Vice Chancellor for Research in 2001

UC Berkeley will have a new Vice Chancellor for Research on January 1, 2000. Professor Joseph Cerny will step down from this position to return to research and teaching. He will be replaced by Professor Mary Beth Burnside, who was a former dean of the biological sciences at UC Berkeley and was named a Chancellor's Professor in 1996.

Vice Chancellor Cerny, a nuclear chemist, has a long history of research administration at Berkeley. He assumed the position of Provost for Research in 1986 and his current position of Vice Chancellor for Research in 1994.

Professor Burnside, a cell biologist, was dean of the biological sciences from 1983 to 1990. She oversaw the multi-year restructuring of biological sciences, the largest reorganization of university research and teaching undertaken at that time.

Awards at Berkeley

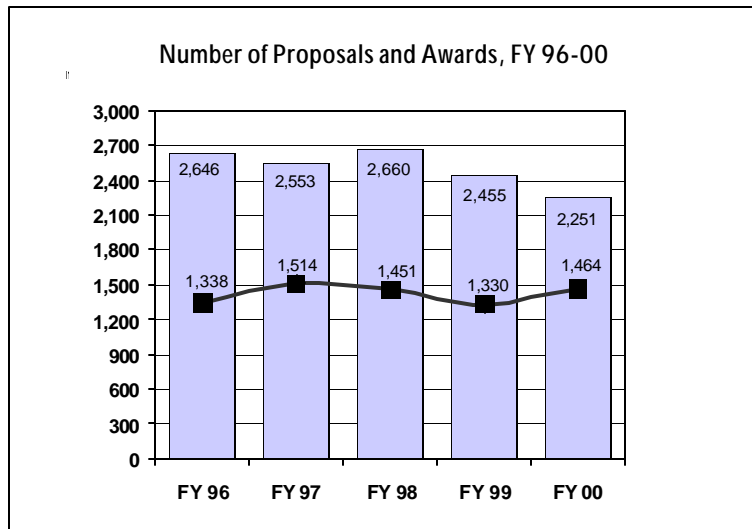

Overview of Awards

Berkeley faculty submitted a total of 2,251 proposals for research, education, and public service projects in fiscal year 2000, requesting a total of $964.9 million. The campus received a total of 1,464 awards in fiscal year 2000, totaling $430.9 million.

Federal agencies funded 638 projects in FY 00, approximately 44 percent of the total number of awards. Nonprofit organizations funded 413 projects, 28 percent of the total. Nonfederal government agencies supported 180 projects and University of California sponsors supported over 132 projects. Industry supported 102 projects, which is seven percent.

The charts below compare the numbers of proposals and dollars requested to awards received in the same fiscal year.

Proposals Submitted Compared to Awards Received (DOLLARS IN MILLIONS)

Project-Period, Budget-Period, and Future Funding

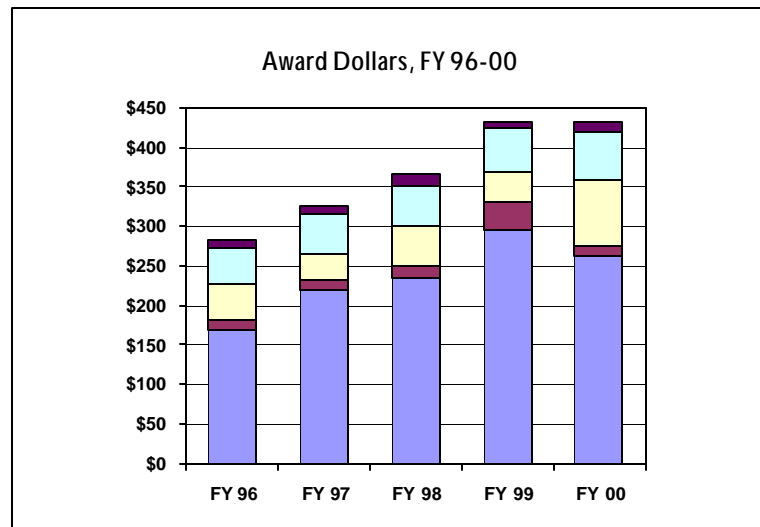

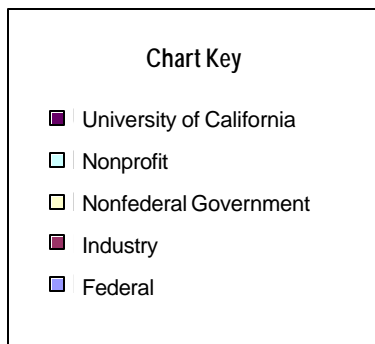

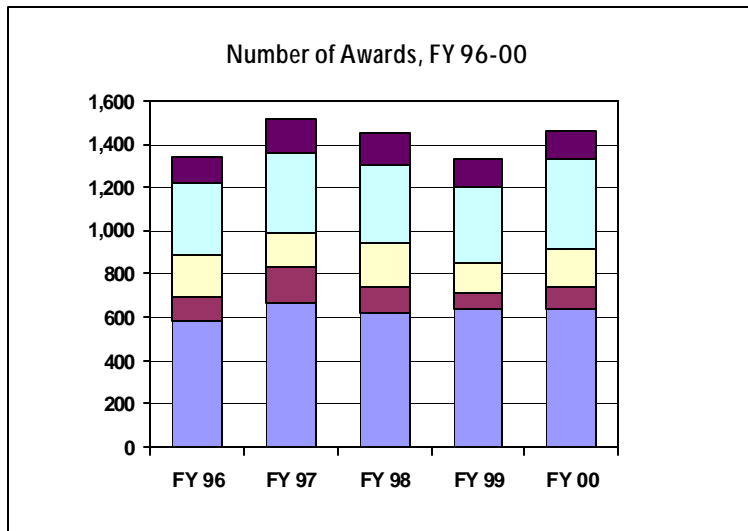

The following six charts provide a five-year comparison of awards at Berkeley, showing numbers and dollars for project-period, budget-period, and future funding.

Project-period funding identifies the total award for the entire project, that includes funding for all years. The entire project amount is reported in the fiscal year of the project's begin date.

Budget-period funding is recorded for each year of a project, including future years, and the amounts for each budget period are reported in the fiscal years of their respective begin dates.

Future years are captured when the award is received, in budget-period reporting.

Fiscal Year 2000 Funding

Federal agencies are Berkeley's major source of grants and contracts; federal funding totaled $260.7 million in FY 00, accounting for 61 percent of total award dollars. Funding from nonprofit organizations totaled $60.5 million, 14 percent of total funding. State of California agencies provided 17 percent of awards with $72.6 million. Grants from industrial sponsors totaled $14.2 million, three percent of awards. Grants from University of California programs, usually offered only to investigators in the UC system, made up three percent with $13.2 million. The remaining $9.8 million includes awards from foreign governments, other states, city, and county sponsors.

Nonfederal Agencies

Berkeley relies on support from sponsors other than federal agencies. Nonfederal funding in FY 00 totaled $170.2 million, 39 percent of total funding. Nonfederal agencies include nonprofit organizations such as foundations, charitable organizations, and educational institutions; State of California agencies, businesses and other for-profit sponsors, University of California programs, and other government sources.
